SUI YING CHOU V. LO ROI. The interpleader summons in this case, in which Wong Po Yu applies for the restoration of a unk seized by the bailiff, was resumed. Mr. Ewens appeared for the applicant, and Mr

He contended in the first place that this bill of sale was given for a called, he argued, was worthy of belief. He could have no possible inducement to give evidence in favour of his client. When these three men went to the 1871 and led to the Commune. office of Mr. Ewens to execute the deed of assignment Lo Hoi and another man passing as Wan Fai represented themselves as being the owners of the junk. It had been shown that. these two names were those of one and the same man. That sometimes Lo Hoi was known as Lo Hoi and sometimes as Wan Fai. It was not easy to say what Lo Hoi's object was in taking another man to Mr. Ewens's office and he should suggest that it was in case this bill of sale should be set aside that the creditors would then only be able to seize part of the junk. Again, after the bill of sale was executed the applicant took no further steps in the matter. He did not take possession of the junk, nor did he interview any of the sailors on board who remained quite ignorant as to the charge in the the bill of sale was not sufficient in this, for according to Boyd's Merchant Shipoing Acts actual possession must also be entered Mr. Ewens said that there were provisions in

Mr. Wilkinson had yet, however, to make out his case, as he did not appear on behalf of an execution creditor. The junk would therefore remain at present in the custody of the Court.

Connected, too, with all this is the complicated position of General Boulanger. The Orientals were Grevy and Rouvier, and the Royalists.

And the cry, like all such, has a little of truth in it. Boulanger has identified himself with the matter so freely and openly that they could be new Army Bill, which he has presented to the Chamber with a Spartan plan of equality, Every duly qualified Frenchman, whether prince-and there are plenty of princes in France since all put in three years' active service under the flag; stand English, and, however that may be, they there will be no volunteers for a year, which is a all comprehended very well what passed on the mere abuse: a side-way to edge in substitute stage, and they enjoyed the performance very His Lordship, in giving judgment, said that service; no theological students shall be exempted; all must serve; masters and servants; students been doubly so to the unlettered seamen and gunand artizans: there must be perfect equality be- ners whose knowledge of English is confined to a fore bullets, bayonets, shells, and sabres. The Cabinet promises economy to the extent of 70 million francs: this would be an excellent beginning in the work of safety, provided the economy would not be transferred to the "extraordinary budget." France wants not two budgets, but simply one: and in this, a single record of her revenue and outlay, nothing but truthful figures should be introduced. She is the most heavily taxed nation in the universe: twenty percent higher than Englishmen, and nearly thirty per cent. more than Germans. AH-SIN AT THE PLAY.

Monday night's (13th June) performance at the Tyne Theatre. Newcastle, must be considered. Jarry Monkhouse and his business manager, Mr. Ellis Miller, had arranged for a visit to the house of the members of the Imperial Chinese their invitation brought to pass one of the most interesting ceremonials that has ever been witnessed by our playgoers. When Mr. Monkhouse conveyed to the officers and men on board scarcely counted on so unanimous an acceptance as actually happened. However, the drama is a great institution in China; and, on the receipt of the managerial offer, there was the English methods of the stage. Thus every engineer, marine, and sailor that could be spared formed into fours on the quay and commanced its murch to Westgate Road, about twenty minutes being occupied by the march. Nearly oneperformance. But they took their seats so quietly that there was no interruption of any kind experienced. About 400 sailors, stokers and cleaners were seated together in the pit, and in the upper circle a hundred petty officers were accommodated. The entire front row of the dress circle was placed at the disposal of the officers of the force, and portions of the second and third rows were also devoted to them. Admiral W. M. Lang, with Captain Kew Pow Chin, H.I.C.N., and Captain Tang Shi Chang, H.I.C.M.S., occupied a private boxon the O.P. side of the stage. Each officer had been requested to present his card at the characters and an English equivalent of the name were received by the doorkeepers. The men of the force all wore their dark blue uniforms, with light blue weist-coarfs and black turbana. The officers were in full dress of dark blue suits, with black velvet facings and trimmings, and close fitting Chinese hats. The secretaries and other officials were resplendent in silken robes of light blue and purple, light blue and dove colour, romarkably attentive to the business of the stage, but silent and undemonstrative. Even between the sots there was little conversation amongst them, and, with very few exceptions, they kept their seats to the close of the performance. As the evening wore on, and the atmosphere became very close, a great many fans were pulled out amongst the seamen, and were passed from hand to hand. We believe that the whole of the officers speak and underthem, it is easy to imagine that it must have few words, but every one of whom is well acquaint-
